Design Your Service
SIT725 TASK 1.3P

My name is Ayush Indapure, I currently live in Southbank, Melbourne. I have completed my bachelors in computer applications. I'm a web developer with expertise in Front-end development. I'm currently building a product called StreEats. StreEats helps you find nearest underrated street food in your area with just one single click. StreEats was featured in top 15 projects among 198 projects launched on productHunt as on 15th Feb, 2025. The project was initially in India but now I'm planning to launch it in Australia as well by registering '.com.au' domain.

I'm someone who loves building projects on real-world problems instead of old school projects like e-commerce clones. I believe my greatest strength is I'm customer obsessed. I start everything with the customer in mind. I'm a big Apple fan, I simply adore their attention to details for designing and UI/UX principles. Initially, I didn't fully understand why Apple gives so much importance to it. But now, as I scale StreEats as a solopreneur, I see why it matters the most. Focusing on what your customer need is not just important its everything.

I want to be known for a builder, designer, developer, and a founder of my own web-agency, Mohana. I've plans some plans in my mind for mind-blowing projects but I'm just patiently waiting for forming a team of 2-3 front-end, back-end and IT support developers in order to execute the plan alongside me. Moreover, Exited to start my journey at Deakin University and network with some fellow developers.
